GERMAN SCHOOL TO MEET FOR SUMMER SESSION AT BRISTOL

Literature, Teaching, and Speaking Courses to Be Offered

CLASSES TO BE HELD JULY 5 TO AUGUST 15

Ernst Feise, Professor at Johns Hopkins to Be Director

A new bulletin of the Middlebury College summer school of German has been published by the college editor, announcing the session to be held at Bristol from July 5 to August 18. This is the second year of the school after its suspension in 1918, having been reorganized last year.

The school will be directed by Ernst Feise, Ph. D., professor of German at Johns Hopkins university. The other members of the faculty will be: Robert O. Roseler, who is now an assistant professor of German in the Ohio State university; Friederich Wilhelm Kaufman, associate professor of German at Smith college; and Werner Neuse, assistant professor of the language at New York university. Prof. Everett Skillings, head of the German department at Middlebury will serve as dean of the school.

Twelve courses will be offered this year divided into three classes, literature, methods of teaching, and language practice. Among the literature course will be classic and modern German, drama, recent German fiction and special investigation. The methods of teaching will include courses in actual teaching, study of various texts, and demonstration school. The language practice courses will consist of advanced practice in speaking and writing German, intermediate composition, practical phonetics and conversational German.

The school follows the policy of the other Middlebury summer schools.

NEW PROFESSOR FOR BIOLOGY IS SECURED

MacDonald Fulton Will Fill Position of Prof. Barney During Sabbatical Leave

MacDonald Fulton, professor of biology at Franklin and Marshall college, Lancaster, Penn., has been secured to fill the position of Prof. Raymond L. Barney, who is taking his sabbatical leave next year.

Professor Fulton is a graduate of Brown university, where he received his masters' degree. This summer he plans to complete his studies for a doctorate degree at Brown. He has been at Franklin and Marshall college for one year, substituting in the biology department.

Professor Barney has not as yet made any definite plans as to where he will travel during his year of leave.

Prof. Everett Skillings, head of the German department and dean of the German summer school, will also take his sabbatical leave next year. He will not, however, leave until after the 1932 session of the German school. No information has yet been received concerning the professor who will take his place.

Prof. Perley C. Perkins, assistant professor of English and Miss Clara B. Knapp, professor of home economics are taking their sabbatical leave this year. Professor Perkins is traveling in Europe and Miss Knapp is touring the United States.

Elly Delfs to Present Vesper Musical Program

Elly Delfs '33, will present a program of vocal solos at the regular Friday afternoon musicale to be held in Mead memorial chapel March 4, from 5:00 to 5:30 p. m.

Miss Delfs' program will include the following selections: Friend of Mine, Sanderson; Der Wanderer, Schubert; In the Luxembourg Garden, Manning; But the Lord is Mindful of His Own, Mendelssohn; and My Laddie, Thayer.

Since Thanksgiving a series of weekly musicales has been sponsored with increasing success by the women's student government association, in conjunction with the A Tempo club. There will be only one more program given after this week.

MIDDLEBURY TO GIVE $1000 SCHOLARSHIPS

Special Awards to Vermont Men Based on Character and High School Record

Scholarships amounting to $1,000 each for the four year course will be given by the college to ten male residents of Vermont who plan to come to Middlebury.

These special Vermont scholarships were established two years ago. They are distributed over a period of four years, amounting to two hundred fifty dollars a year. According to the announcements sent to the state high schools the award is "based on the general plan of the Rhodes scholarship and given to male residents of Vermont who show promise in: qualities of manhood, force of character, and leadership; literary and scholastic ability and attainment; and physical vigor, as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways."

The school record and personal references from the principal and other citizens of influence in the community will be considered in making the selection. All applicants unless otherwise advised by the committee will come to Middlebury for a scholastic aptitude test, a general intelligence test, and a personal interview with the committee of selection which will include the president, the dean of men, the director of admissions and personnel, and two members of the board of trustees. The scholarship is tenable for four consecutive years subject to the maintenance of a high standing and a general record in college which is satisfactory to the committee of selection. Applications should be made to E. J. Wiley, director of admissions and personnel, on or before April 15, 1932.

These scholarships were created through the action of the board of trustees of the college, and the funds are those of the college.

Interfraternity Council Purchases New Trophies

The interfraternity council has recently purchased three new cups to be awarded annually to the winners in the intramural basketball, track, and baseball tournaments. These awards will replace the old cups, now retired from circulation, as each have been won three times by a fraternity.

The new trophies are each fifteen inches high on a black base, and each is surmounted by a metal figure representing that sport for which it is to be awarded. The first fraternity to win a cup three times will become the permanent possessor of the award but until that time the cups will circulate from winner to winner. The track and baseball prizes are now on exhibition in the office of the dean of men, while the basketball trophy has already been awarded to Kappa Delta Rho, this year's winner in that sport.

New equipment has also been purchased by the interfraternity council so that it will no longer be necessary to use varsity equipment.

PRESENTATION OF FIRST LONG DRAMA WILL BE MARCH 22

One Performance of "Death Takes a Holiday" to Be Given

PREPARATIONS ARE WELL UNDER WAY

Play Has Been Successfully Presented in Leading Cities

March 22 has been selected as the date of presentation of "Death Takes a Holiday" by the dramatic club at the playhouse.

This play was written by Alberto Casella and had a great success in New York city a year and a half ago. After its run in the metropolis it was given in many of the leading cities through out the country and met with equal success on tour.

Preparations are nearly completed by the dramatic club for its presentation. All members of the cast have been chosen and rehearsals have been under way for some time. Rapid work is being done on the scenery by the class in play production.

While "Death Takes a Holiday" was in New York it was hailed by critics as one of the greatest psychological plays of the decade. Many of the parts give opportunity for wonderful dramatic interpretation, particularly the leading role of Death which was created on Broadway by Philip Merivale, one of America's foremost actors. Franklin Butler '33, will take the part in the dramatic club presentation.

Because of the excessive royalty charges it will be impossible to present this play more than a single evening in Middlebury. As yet the play has not been released to many cities and it is felt that Middlebury is exceedingly fortunate in having the play given here.

GLEE CLUB TO MAKE CONCERT TRIP SOON

Vocalists Will Leave March 16 for Trip Through New York and New Jersey

The Middlebury College glee club will leave March 15 or 16 for its annual trip to New York city and New Jersey and will give concerts, radio broadcasts, and make a victrola record while in New York.

In years past the glee club has made several trips to various parts of New England but owing to the fact that the annual intercollegiate glee club contest is not to be held this year, the usual Boston trip has been dropped and the New York trip lengthened to a whole week.

Among the engagements which have already been scheduled for the New York trip are concerts at the International House in New York city, and one at Bennington, Vermont.

The radio concerts will be given from station WOR in Newark, N. J., and WJZ in New York. The dates have not been set as yet, but the CAMPUS will publish the time of broadcast as soon as it is learned.

The musical program which the glee club is to give this year is one of the best that it has ever presented. It contains a variety of classical, light classical, and college songs. This type of program is very popular and has met with approval wherever the glee club has sung during the past few years.

The glee club feels it is very fortunate in having Mr. Fritz Tiller as guest artist this year. He will render

Mi-Careme Celebration to be Given at Chateau

The faculty of the French school will hold a costume party for the women living in the Chateau tomorrow at 8:00 p. m. The event will take place in celebration of the "mi-careme" which is a French festival of mid-lent corresponding to the "mardi gras".

The program will include a grand parade with the awarding of prizes for the most original costumes and dancing. The faculty will provide pancakes for refreshment in accordance with the custom in France. A battle of confetti and serpentine will conclude the evening's entertainment.

Dr. Stephen A. Freeman, Mll. Lea Binand, Mll. Simone Verrier and Prof. Jean Guiton are in charge.

DOUBLE DEBATE TO TAKE PLACE FRIDAY

Both Men's and Women's Debating Teams to Compete With Rhode Island

A double-header debate, in which both men's and women's teams are to participate, will be held Friday afternoon and evening, March 4, with Rhode Island state college at Middlebury.

The men's encounter will take place in Old Chapel at 3:30 Friday afternoon on the question resolved, that interallied war debts be canceled. The negative side will be upheld by a Middlebury team composed of Reamer Kline '32, Thomas Duffield '33, and Edward Yerovitz '33. Their opponents from Rhode Island state are Lloyd E. Crandall, Harry Prebluda, and Donald A. Williams.

The women's contest will be held in Mead memorial chapel at 8:15 Friday evening when the question for discussion is: resolved, that capitalism is the best economic system. Eva Tuttle '32, Janet Stainton '33, and Dorothy Canfield '35, will debate affirmatively while Helen Holmes, Mathilda Litwin and Catherine Regan from Rhode Island state will argue negatively.

A banquet will be given in honor of the visiting teams at the Middlebury inn at 6:30 Friday evening, March 4. Dr. Vernon C. Harrington is to preside as toastmaster.

A varsity team composed of Reamer Kline '32, and Thomas Duffield '33, will debate the question of debt cancellation Thursday, March 10 with New York university.

An encounter with Pembroke college has been arranged for the women's team for Saturday, March 12. Middlebury will discuss affirmatively the question: resolved, that capitalism is a failure. This is to be a home debate. Another double-header is being planned with the University of Vermont.

Mountain Club Sponsors Outing at Lake Dunmore

The Middlebury College mountain club had an outing for thirty of its members at camp Naidni on the shores of lake Dunmore last Sunday.

The day was spent hiking down the flume toward Silver Lake, skating, coasting, and ski-joring. For the first time ski-joring, a comparatively new sport at Middlebury, was sponsored by the mountain club. As skiing conditions on the surrounding trails were not good two cars were run out onto the lake where they were used to tow enthusiastic coasters and skiers up and down the lake at a thrilling speed.

At noon a hot lunch consisting of baked beans, brown bread and cocoa was served to the hungry sportsmen by the owners of camp Naidni in cooperation with the mountain club.

ARTHUR PILLSBURY FAMOUS SCIENTIST TO SPEAK TUESDAY

Miracles of Nature Will Be Subject of Lecture by Naturalist

TO BE LAST PROGRAM IN CONCERT COURSE

Dr. Pillsbury is Recognized as Best Photographer of Plants

Dr. Arthur C. Pillsbury, noted naturalist, will give an illustrated lecture on "Miracles in Nature" Tuesday evening, March 15, at the Congregational church. This will be the last number on the entertainment course program for the 1931-32 season.

Well-known as a lecturer, Dr. Pillsbury is also a reputed scientist, inventor, explorer, and author. He is recognized as the greatest contemporary photographer of the growth of living things. He has worked for twenty years to perfect the machines and processes by which he is now able to present the phenomena of nature in moving pictures.

In order to secure the kind of moving pictures he will show here, Dr. Pillsbury found it necessary to invent and build his own equipment. While still in college, he set about making a camera that could be moved while a picture is being made without blurring the objects photographed.

His next work was to photograph flowers and plants in the actual process of growth. A scene which required six months to take is shown on the screen in as many minutes. Another interesting feature of the film itself is the coloration of the various flowers, the changes being shown exactly as they are in the natural state.

Dr. Pillsbury's next step was to develop a machine with which he could use the x-ray in making moving pictures, and he has succeeded in making some truly remarkable films along

DRAMATIC CLUB TO MANAGE JUNIOR PLAY

Pan-Hellenic Stunt and Band Concert are Introduced as Additional Features

Announcement has been made by Stephen Hoyle, head of the 1933 junior week, that the dramatic club will take entire charge of the class play which will be presented as a part of the junior week program.

The production will be presented by this organization instead of by the junior class as in former years. Two performances will be given, the proceeds of which will be divided between the association and the junior class. The junior week play committee will assist the dramatic club in choosing the play.

Casting and rehearsals will begin after the spring recess. Participation in the production is not limited to class members but preference will be given to juniors.

A few new features are to be introduced. Among them is a band concert which will be given Sunday night by the college band. The stunt committee is planning some additional novelty stunts. There will also be one produced by the women and sponsored by the Pan-Hellenic association.

This decision to have only one stunt on the part of the women is instead of having a competition between the sororities similar to that held by the fraternities.

MEN, WOMEN, AND COLLEGE

Application of the policy of segregation is gradually abolishing coeducation at Middlebury, and working toward the eventual operation of an affiliated college for women. It is the purpose of this editorial to point out certain definite advantages that we believe are contained in this plan. We seek this end in view of the fact that all our previous discussions have treated the intellectual and practical sides of college life, and we feel that our work cannot be regarded as well rounded or complete, until the social Middlebury has been considered.

From 1883 to 1931 women attended Middlebury under the same academic rules as did men. Beginning in the fall of 1931, with the entering class of 1935, women were admitted only to an affiliated college, which will have eventually a campus adjoining that of the men, but a plant complete and separate in all respects. The trustees' decision upon this new policy removes any probability of their abandoning the education of either men or women; and also quiets rumors that the training of either of the two groups would be continued at some new subsidiary institution to be located elsewhere.

Practically, this new policy of affiliated colleges will mean a continually increasing segregation of classes, until the mixed groups are entirely eliminated. It will involve separate recitation halls, gymnasium facilities and chapel for the new women's college. But the entire program is more an educational than a social expedient. The social institutions and relations of Middlebury men and women will undoubtedly remain nearly unchanged. It is even probable that such activities as benefit from mixed participation will continue to enjoy that advantage.

It appears that the best contemporary pedagogical theory is against coeducation and in favor of segregated institutions. The policy which the trustees have chosen merits considerable praise, for it includes the educational advantages of segregation and retains the social advantages of coeducation. One has only to look at large men's or women's colleges, particularly those located in territory as sparsely populated and as far from the larger cities as this, to realize that these institutions have created an environment which is both unhealthy and unnatural. It seems scarcely wise to educate men and women together from kindergarten through high school, with the intention of preparing them for a later life where they must live and work in close association, and then to introduce them into such artificial communities for the four final years of education. It is indeed fortunate that Middlebury's trustees have chosen not to duplicate the situation existing in many of the rurally situated New England men's colleges, where the sight of a woman is the signal for a mad rush, and where the students must import for all social affairs if they can afford it; or if they be not wealthy confine their social relations to women of considerably less cultural and social background; or lead a life of four years' celibacy. (Few are wealthy and fewer still celibates). The situation existing in many of the exclusively women's colleges is no better.

It is undeniable that there is ground for considerable well founded criticism of the arrangement as now being developed. Allowing as it does an almost unlimited opportunity for the association of men and women who so desire, it is certain to result in some questionable conduct. Though objections of this sort are now particularly abundant, we cannot help feeling that the increase of such problems is but a temporary outgrowth of economic conditions which force individuals to rely upon the resources of their own society, rather than upon commercial amusements or diverting week-end trips and that over the long trend of time such problems will take care of themselves. It is also charged that such a college as Middlebury is (or plans to be in the future), "degenerates into a mere marriage mart." That the work of college education should be in any way connected with the vile institution of marriage is indeed most regrettable! In fact, after considering statistics showing how far marriages growing out of college romances surpass in happiness of outcome those of other origins, we feel that the fostering of such friendships is a worthy function of any college.

We believe that it should be counted high among Middlebury's advantages that she will continue to allow to men and women the benefits of association with each other, and we are convinced that such an arrangement will maintain a healthy social condition, and constitute an important phase of adequate preparation for later life.

Galley Grist

"Jonathan Edwards", by Arthur C. McGiffert, Jr., N. Y., Harpers.

It is unfortunate that many men are made famous, or perhaps, notorious, by some single work which they produce. In good faith they create something for the benefit of their fellow men, and in return are labeled with it throughout the years because the public mind has a way of fastening on to some lone aspect of a person as being totally representative of him. It was on a certain Sunday in the middle of the eighteenth century that a young Massachusetts preacher stirred his congregation to the depths of their conscience-stricken selves by telling them that they were "sinners in the hands of an angry God." He told them that in the sight of their Heavenly Father they were like spiders suspended over a fiery pit, into which they might be dashed at any moment. Speak of Jonathan Edwards today and the listener, if he has heard the name at all, will answer, "Oh, yes, he was that old Calvinistic preacher who scared people half to death by preaching about spiders, hell-fire and brimstone."

People know little or nothing about the life of the man. What does it matter that he was one of the keenest thinkers this country has ever had? Perhaps it is this fact which makes him difficult for them to read. What does it matter that he was a fine scholar, a devout Christian, a tender husband and father? These things do not count; he preached a sermon which frightened people; that is enough to condemn him.

This book is recommended to those people who might care to learn more about this great American preacher. The book is written with few flourishes, with an unpretentious style. Dr. McGiffert has chosen the happy medium of presenting the man as he was, in so far as that is possible. Jonathan Edwards' power and weaknesses are both presented. One sees his sincerity and ability; one also finds that at times he was an extremely tactless man. His mystical and intellectual experiences are considered, as are his unfortunate difficulties with his parishioners. He is neither glorified nor condemned. The result is an interesting account of one of the great and influencing figures in American history.

A Short Introduction to the History of Human Stupidity, by Walter B. Pitkin. $4.00 to be published by Simon and Schuster in April.

The author of the "Psychology of Happiness" and "The Psychology of Achievement" makes a preliminary excursion into terra incognita. Psychology has explored the realms of subnormal insanity and the rarified heights of genius. The vast areas of average, history-making, perennial stupidity it has hitherto almost entirely neglected. Now Mr. Pitkin brings together in one volume the cream of his researches into the history of mankind in Blunderland.

Rural Russia Under the Old Regime, by Geroid T. Robinson. N. Y. To be published this month by Longmans, Green and Co. $4.00.

All who seek more than a superficial understanding of Russia today must understand the Russia of 1900-1914. Yet, although fifteen years have elapsed since the revolution of 1917, no volume has yet appeared presenting the full and authoritative account of how Russia came to be as she is.

Dr. Robinson attempts to offer such an account. He examined documents in Russia which are now withdrawn from scrutiny even by scholars, as well as much unpublished material. His work therefore, contains needed information available in no other account written in English, and not a little which is now unavailable even in Russia.

It outlines clearly the relationship of peasant, landlord, and government at the beginning of our century. It shows the causes making for discontent and unrest on the Russian land in the early 1900's. It shows the effect of the Russo-Japanese war, and describes the revolution which burst into flame with the failure of that war. Even more important, it shows the effect of the suppression of the revolution on the peasant during the period of 1905-14 — the prelude to the final outburst in 1917.

Shreds and Patches

When a colyumist needs an especially good opening paragraph, he sits down and thinks and thinks and then calls in all his friends and then thinks some more, and the result is something like this. Like the well known camera — simply perfect and perfectly simple.

Which put you right in the mood for a period of reflection on the recent Spanish side-show — or is the word carnival? Practically everything was represented at this swell costumed ball but we looked in vain for someone disguised simply as "It". Then there was the eminent facultas who had a great time for half the evening before he was recognized. Favorite expression of the dance: "If Mother could only see me now!"

Without referring to the weather in so many words, prospects seem to be looking up for a mammoth ski meet sometime in Junior week.

Here it is more than a week since the big event, and the frosh are still wearing vests regularly, with the same careful folding back of the left side of the coat . . . "Dear Dad: Your son is a brother. Please remit. Love, Junior.

Now that we have so successfully introduced Dutch dating to this campus we are open to requests for other reforms that seem necessary. Would anybody like the chapel steeple bent back again, or the chateau moved over behind the library? Or how about a matrimonial booth in the chapel vestibule? Name it, folks, and we'll do the rest.

Beethoven may have thrown Vienna in the aisles with his superb duet for thrush and kettledrum, but Middlebury comes right back with a concerto for two piccolos and basedrum, accompanied by a German street band, all for dear old alma mater.

Here we are with the second semester three weeks old — the logical time for a word of advice about hitting the books before spring bursts upon us. From the general attitude of frenzy and helplessness during midyears, we gather that the average definition of pursuit of one's studies is to let them get just far enough ahead of him so that he has to run like everything to keep up with them.

After that distinctly complimentary chapel address last Sunday — but my dear, you really should stay awake — we don't know what to think! It's rather a shattered illusion to think of our seniors washing dollies and playing horse after four years in this place.

There's an embarassing moment champ for every situation. Either he drops cigarettes out of his clothes when dressing for track in front of the coach or loses a page or two of one of those handy little Latin trots under the professor's eagle eye. When a feller needs a friend . . . .

In the interest of fellow man, may we inquire in all seriousness why the poor choir members must be barred from the blessings of benediction after vespers? It doesn't seem right, somehow.

Perhaps it would be just as well to clear up the burning question that seems to bother so many of you subscribers, as to the difference between this column and that of Mrs. Winchell's little boy. Mainly, there's the fact that his syndicate is much, oh, much larger than ours. Aside from that, well . . . .

And so many people write in fan mail about how we manage to think up this drivel. The verd think is complimentary of course, but here's how it is. We open the typewriter, laugh like h—, and reason backward. And there y'are!

In closing, if you think this column is good, you should see the stuff that never gets in — why, actually, my dear!

ENVIRONMENT MOLDS OUR TRUE CHARACTER

"We Are What We See," Says Rev. Adams; Urges Need of Life of High Ideals

The Rev. Chauncy C. Adams of Middlebury, Vermont, addressed the student body at the vespers service Sunday, February 28, stressing the influence of surroundings upon the individual and the importance of a lofty aim.

He said in part: "To the pure all things are pure. We see what is in us, nothing else. This is physically, spiritually, and psychologically true. We see what we are. Conversely, we are what we see. This is a paradox seemingly contradictory, but true. Truth has more than one side. Strange contradictions of life yield better to experience than to logic.

"A great many things we know until we are asked, and then are not quite so sure. We are asked what we are and say 'I am myself.' But what is 'self'? Is it something acquired, or are we born as we are? Self, or personality, is something acquired through imitation. We are not born as we are. The most powerful environment is the personal one. We become like those with whom we habitually live.

"If we are what we see, then the higher our vision, the greater we shall be. We may imitate as our ideal the pugilist, the baseball player, or the aviator. But there is something greater than being any of these; that is being a man or a woman. The great tragedy of life is that we are born a man or a woman and die a butcher, baker, or candlestick-maker.

"We need a vision of the highest, and that vision of the highest is Christ. God was a perfect man. He was not only on Mount Sinai. He was here among men. We see the ideal man in the Galilean.

"We ought to cultivate selective seeing. Learned to look on the truth of every day; for there is truth in the world. Learn to look on the good in people; there is good to every soul.

"The ultimate witness is Christ himself. When our light becomes a mirror, reflecting Christ, it shows the true transformation, God in Christ and Christ in you, the hope of God."

DEPARTMENT STORE BUSINESS DISCUSSED

Scott A. Babcock '27, Tells of Opportunities Open to College Men in Retailing

Scott A. Babcock '27, of the Jordan Marsh company of Boston spoke on the department store field and employment management at the vocational conference held Monday night.

The department store organization, Mr. Babcock said, is divided up into four principal divisions, all of which must work together in perfect harmony. These divisions are the merchandising, which controls all the purchase of stocks; the service, which includes the selling of goods and everything connected with them until they reach the customer, and caring for all complaints the customer may have. The third division is the accounting, which keeps all the records of transactions and collections; and the fourth is the publicity division, which controls the advertising and other public relations.

Each of these departments must make its principal aim the satisfaction of the customer who is "always right". In addition to this, all divisions must cooperate perfectly in order to secure the greatest possible efficiency. The department store is an outstanding example of a well-oiled business organization.

The merchandising end of the business has now been reduced almost to an exact science. Purchases must be made to fit the fickle whims of the customers, and they must be accurately forecast. Statistics of previous seasons and accurate observation at style centers enable the buyers to buy with a certain amount of certainty, but it is a difficult and nerve-wracking job at best. College men entering the store usually start in this division, first being put behind the counter as salesmen, and rapidly moved from one department to another if they show promise. They are promoted to the positions of assistant buyer and buyer if they are successful. Attention to detail is very important in this work. Men must also be able to get along well with others, and must have a keen sense of sales values, for competition is very severe.

In general, the service end of the business does not appeal to the college graduate, for much of the work is composed of monotonous detail, with accuracy the only responsibility. The same applies even more completely to the accounting division. However, an opportunity is offered especially to college women in the interior decorating field, when a high class of salespeople are employed and very considerable taste is required.

The employment office is also a part of the service division, and it is the part of the department store with which the college man first comes in contact. Even here, the work done is largely governed by statistics. Qualifications for various positions are very carefully worked out, and means of testing them are devised. Those who are to be placed in positions of contact with the customers are also interviewed personally by the employment manager or his assistant in order to be sure that there is no important deficiency in personal qualifications.

Even after employees have been hired, they are subject to continual observation, because of the great importance of efficiency and the competition which exists between individuals as well as between firms. Twice a year, every individual is carefully inspected for all possible qualifications, in selling ability, efficiency, and personality. A welfare department looks after health, and investigates personal situations when need for assistance arises. A very valuable service both to the individual and to the firm is rendered in this way.

Employment management is an extremely interesting work, because it enables personal contact with a large number of people daily, and is consequently varied and not monotonous.

Although there is sometimes unpleasantness in discharging employees, generally those who lose their jobs have been warned previously and expect what is coming. Everything done is reduced to a system here as everywhere else in the store, and teamwork with every end of the other departments is necessary to successful accomplishment of the work.

SPANISH CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL CARNIVAL

Fifty Couples are Present at Costume Dance Held Saturday Night at Inn

The third annual Spanish carnival was held at the Middlebury inn, Saturday evening, February 27. Fifty couples, dressed in various and colorful costumes, were present.

A Spanish atmosphere was created by crepe paper decorations of red, purple, and yellow, and by posters depicting Spanish scenes. The members of the Black Panther orchestra, which furnished the music, carried out the Spanish idea by wearing bright colored sashes.

The grand march took place during the fourth dance, after which the chaperons, as judges, awarded prizes for the most original costumes to Margaret Scott '33 and Carl Anderson '34. Miss Scott and Mr. Anderson were dressed as rag dolls representing Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy. Pictures were taken of the winning couple directly after the prizes were awarded.

The chaperons were: Prof. and Mrs. Raymond L. Barney, and Prof. and Mrs. Juan A. Centeno. The carnival committee consisted of Anna Coleman '32, chairman; Margaret Clewley '32, Josephine Walker '32, Harold Young '32, Robert Cushing '34, Emilio Ferrari '34, and Clara White '34.

Delta Upsilon Gives Tea Dance Saturday

Twenty couples attended the tea dance at the Delta Upsilon house Saturday, February 27. A light supper was served and music was furnished by the victrola.

The chaperons were Miss Prudence H. Fish, Prof. and Mrs. V. Spencer Goodreds and Prof. Grafton F. Nealley.

Clarissa Pierce '30 Will Direct Local Production

Clarissa Pierce '30, is directing the home-talent play, "Aren't We All", which is to be given at the grange hall Thursday and Friday nights, March 3 and 4.

Miss Pierce has been directing plays for the New England producing company since last fall. This company is about forty years old and is run by men of wide practical experience in producing on Broadway. The scenarios of the plays are written expressly for amateurs, and there are no re-written plays in the repertoire.

During the years that she was in Middlebury College, Miss Pierce was active in the dramatic department. She appeared in one play, "Common Clay" in her sophomore year, but abandoned acting for back-stage work which made a greater appeal to her. She took several courses under Professor Goodreds in make-up and scenery painting and designed several sets for college productions. She produced a play, "Cross Roads", which was one of the four given for the Swift prize contest.

In her sophomore year, Miss Pierce was voted into Wig and Pen, honorary dramatic society.

INTERCOLLEGIATE NOTES

New Italian Course at Williams

Concerning the new course of Italian literature in English translation offered at Williams college, the editor of the Williams Record writes:

"There seems no reason to doubt the potential value of such courses in the remainder of the Romanic language curriculum, and in German. They would not, of course, be intended for men majoring, or pursuing considerable work in the language itself; but rather for those students whose programs have not permitted the extensive development of an interest in foreign literatures. The fact that a man's schedule has not permitted him to continue his French beyond the first college year, or to gain more than an introduction to German does not mean that he would not welcome an opportunity to get, in shorter space, a broad survey of those literatures.

"The next most promising experiment along this line might be the collaboration of the French and German departments in a year course aiming to present through lectures, discussions, and the reading of the best available English translations, the great literary trends of the past century in the two most important literatures of Western Europe. Such a course could be made of the highest significance, and of value alike to the student of English literature, philosophy, or social science."

Green, of Yale, Speaks at Geneva

James Green, Yale graduate and president of the intercollegiate disarmament council of the United States, in his address to the Geneva Conference said in part:

"It is young men and women of my age who will be commanded to commit suicide. It is my generation which will be requested to destroy the best of human culture, perhaps civilization itself, for causes which future historians will discover to be erroneous, if not utterly stupid or actually vicious. We have thus lost interest in being prepared for cannon fodder.

"In a sense I am presenting an ultimatum rather than a petition. The students whom I represent are watching critically every action of this conference. For behind their deliberations stands staring down at us the specter of death.

"We desire to live and to live at peace. We desire to construct a world society providing freedom, equal opportunity and a sense of security. We are therefore petitioning you for a substantial reduction of armaments in order that we may have a civilization in which to forward this creative purpose."—Vermont Cynic.

CANE RUSH ANCIENT MIDDLEBURY CUSTOM

Contest Between Freshmen and Sophomores Once a Junior Week Feature

The cane rush between the men of the two lower classes is now a thing of the past, but it is one of the oldest of Middlebury's customs. Though others came and went quickly, the cane rush was an annual affair for fifty years.

The class of '90, a dare-devil class anyway, raised more fuss over the affair than perhaps any other. In the Vermont room of the library there are the heads of two canes, one taken by '90 from '89, Sept. 18, 1886, and the other by '90 from '91, Sept. 23, 1887. The class of '90 was evidently strong in brawn.

In 1899 it was decided best to have rules for the contest, for many scraps had previously arisen. A cane was to be set in the ground, the contestants lined up opposite each other 100 feet from the cane. The class of '98 had ten men, '99 four more. The class in whose territory the cane was at the end of five minutes from the start was declared victorious. There was to be no slugging, no holding a man down after his hands had left the cane, no punching a man with knee, and no one was allowed to wear spiked shoes. Any one starting before the pistol shot was set back three feet at the next lineup, and any one disobeying the rules was pulled out of the rush.

In later years the custom became a feature of junior week. In 1919 several canes were used. These were held by the sophomores. Both sides had the same number of men, and the rush lasted two minutes. At the end of this period the canes and pieces of canes were counted. Any disputes were decided by the Student council, which counted hands and gave the advantage of possession to the one holding the crook end. A whole cane, if there were any left afterwards, counted two points, a crook was one point, and a straight piece fifteen inches long was worth one-half point.

The tradition finally had to be abolished because the fight became a free-for-all in which there was danger of injury. But while it lasted it was a popular test of strength between freshmen and sophomores. c.h.m.

PANTHER FIVE TIES NORWICH FOR TITLE

Maroon Quintet is Downed by 24-15 Score in Final Game as Corliss Stars

Middlebury tied with Norwich university for the Green Mountain basketball championship by defeating the Horsemen 24-15 on the home court last Saturday night in the last game of the conference series.

The contest was not an excellent exhibition of basketball, but it was hard fought and thrilling from the beginning up to the last few moments of play. Although Middlebury had the upperhand after a 11-6 lead at the half the margin which the Panthers possessed was precarious enough to make the encounter one of Middlebury's most exciting of the state series. Norwich employed its slow breaking offensive style which won the Cadets eight straight victories before they fell to Vermont a week ago and again to the Panthers last Saturday night. On the other hand the Middmen played a fast passing and fast cutting offensive style with which the Maroon guards were unable to cope.

Norwich drew first blood at the very start of play but Middlebury soon took the lead only to be tied at five up with four minutes to go in the first canto. At this point Ashdown and Chalmers, who was substituted for Belfanti, opened up a flashy attack which gave Middlebury a five point margin at intermission.

The second period saw the Horsemen starting a faster game but to no avail, due to the close guarding of Corliss and MacKenzie. The contest from the half was featured by a desperate attempt on the part of the Cadets to overcome the Panther lead via the long shot route. But their basket shooting luck was actually miserable as the ball rolled around the rim only to come out time and again. Middlebury's luck was decidedly better, yet many heart breakers barely slipped out of the net after what seemed to be a certain score.

Corliss was without doubt the most outstanding player of the contest. Besides playing a sterling game at guard he was high scorer with a total of nine points. With Corliss and MacKenzie in the back-court the defense of the Panthers was almost impregnable to the Maroon Horsemen. MacKenzie played excellently and took the ball from the backboard time and again to keep the Cadets from following up their long shots. Sweet scored five points to boost the Panther total and outplayed his opponent at center to a marked degree. Chalmers, although not starting for the Middmen played a snappy game and figured for four points in the counting. Captain Ashdown on the other hand had an off night as far as scoring went but was the main stay in the Panther passing and cutting combinations.

Vietheer, Fanos and Leddy led the attack for Norwich with a total of thirteen points among them. Fanos, who is a cool headed passer, was relied upon for long shots, many of which he missed, however. Most of the plays hinged around him and Vietheer and while they played a good floor game their style of offense was unable to cope with the guarding of Corliss and MacKenzie.

Middlebury Hockey Team Wins Five and Loses Two

The recently completed hockey season saw Middlebury's sextet live up to its predecessors and add another state championship to its remarkable record in that sport. The Blue and White team was undefeated in its three state games, two against St. Michael's and one against U. V. M. and ended its season with a total of five victories and two losses.

The team's season, like those of most hockey aggregations this winter, was distinguished by the unusually poor weather conditions. With prospects of a good campaign before them, the Panther puck-chasers were thwarted in their anxious efforts to play their first game for almost two weeks. Their schedule called for them to inaugurate their season with a trip to upper New York state that included games with Cornell, Colgate, and Hamilton on January 13, 15 ,and 16 respectively. Because of the unseasonable weather, the entire trip was cancelled, although the Hamilton game was played as the final contest of the year. The fourth game, scheduled with the Conn. Aggie aggregation at home, was also cancelled because of the lack of ice.

On January 23, however, Coach Dick Phelan's charges were finally favored by Old Man Winter and were able to start the ball rolling by meeting the St. Michael's stick-weilders at the annual winter carnival held by that school at Winooski. The ice was wretchedly poor, but the Middlebury six clearly displayed its superiority by the one-sided score of 12-2. "Zeke" Makela was the individual star of the game with six gaols, while Captain "Duke" Nelson and "Red" Yeomans tallied two apiece.

The Blue and White's second start was also against the same St. Michael's sextet and favored by fast ice the result was even more humiliating. The Panthers overwhelmed the Winooski outfit by the record score of 23-2. Coach Phelan used his spares for a good portion of the game, and seven men scored for Middlebury. Makela again led the parade with nine goals.

The Middmen won their third straight against their traditional rivals from U. V. M. on the McCullough rink by 9-2. Poor ice kept the score from being even more one-sided. Makela continued to lead the way with three counters, while Captain Nelson and Hilles Pickens put in two each.

After their three easy state triumphs, the Middmen met their initial defeat at the hands of the fast Mass. State six by the score of 4-1. The inferior competition provided by Vermont and St. Michael's proved no preparation for a real hockey team. This game marked the first defeat to be sustained at home by Middlebury in seven years. Because of the lack of ice in the college rink, the game was played on the downtown rink, which hindered the play on both sides because of the absence of boards. The injury of Cy Melbye, first-line center ice, was a handicap to the Blue and White in this game.

Williams' strong aggregation handed the Panthers their second consecutive defeat at Williamstown in the following game on February 16. Makela shot one goal to account for all of Middlebury's scoring, while the Williams men made three.

After their two defeats, the team regained its winning play at the expense of an Alumni aggregation as part of the home-coming week program, and then downed Hamilton on the latter's rink. The Alumni were beaten 15-5, while Hamilton succumbed 3-0.

The outstanding playing of the season was done by Makela, who was always a threat and scored twenty-eight goals in the seven games, and Captain Nelson, who played a consistently brilliant game at defense and center ice despite his troublesome knees. He also supplemented his all-around play with eleven goals. Yeomans went well, scoring thirteen times, and Melbye, playing his first varsity campaign ,displayed considerable ability, although his injured leg kept him on the bench most of the time during the last four contests. At defense MacLean performed effectively. Dwyer, an unusually good skater, gave promise of a big season next year, although he saw most of his service as a spare.

Of this year's squad, Captain Nelson, Makela, Bakeman, and Viehmann will be absent when next winter comes.

ANNUAL DECATHLON COMPETITION OPENS

Varsity Track Lettermen Among Twenty Entries in First Event Tuesday

Twenty men reported yesterday afternoon for competition in the sixty yard dash, the first event of the Middlebury College all-campus decathlon contest.

This meet which began yesterday will continue the rest of the week and will end Saturday, March 12. By cooperation of the Blue Key society and the athletic department it will be possible to award silver cups to the four highest scorers.

Directly after the decathlon contest is finished the intramural board track relays which count towards the "trophy of trophies" will be held. Varsity track men are eligible for this meet as it is intended as early season competition for the track men as well as an intramural sport. With these events being carried off the track team will thus automatically be rounding into shape for the official track trials which will begin April 8.

Last year Boyd Brown '33, Donald MacLean '33, and Donald MacKenzie '33, won the decathlon with the respective scores of forty-one, thirty-seven ,and thirty-three points.

The finals in the sixty yard dash will be run off tomorrow afternoon, March 3, with Brown, Cady, Bibby, and Wintersteen running for the first four places while Deemer, Fallon, Prochazka, and MacLean will be running for the fifth place.

BASKETBALL TEAM DEFEATS VERMONT

Middlebury Wins by 35-22 Score as Ashdown Leads Panther Five to Victory

Scoring fourteen points to their opponents single tally in the last eight minutes of play, the Middlebury basketball team defeated the University of Vermont five 35-22 at Burlington Thursday. This victory enabled the Panthers to remain in the running for the Green Mountain conference title.

Until the closing minutes of the contest, it was anybody's game. Vermont was ahead 16-15 at the half, after the lead had changed five times. The fast breaking attack of the Blue quintet proved to be too much for the Catamounts in the last part of the game, and Captain Ashdown's men broke loose to win after the score had been tied at 21-21.

Superiority in making good their free throws helped the Blue hoopsters to defeat their rivals. Ashdown was particularly outstanding in this respect, sinking all eight of his tries from the foul line, which coupled with three field goals for a total of fourteen, gave him premier scoring honors for the evening. Sweet, who sank four baskets, and MacKenzie with three field goals and two fouls, were the other high scorers for the Panthers. Pires and Tupper, with six and five points respectively, led the Green and Gold offense. Vermont substituted frequently, Morgan being the only Catamount basketeer to play the entire contest.

Until practically the end of the game, the Middlebury starting line-up remained intact, with the single exception of the right forward post.

During the first half, both teams scored in spurts. The Green and Gold hoopsters ran up a four point lead, only to have the Blue five knot the count. The Catamounts held a 10-6 advantage, when Sweet started the Panthers on a scoring bee which put them on the long end of a 15-10 count. Six points in the last five minutes of the period, however, gave the home team a 16-15 lead as the half ended.

The lead changed hands twice during the first ten minutes of the second half. Tupper tied the score at 21-21 on a follow-up shot. This was the last time that Vermont tallied a field goal, for Sweet started another Blue rally by sinking a long one-handed shot. MacKenzie and Chalmers each shot from the floor to give the Panthers a six point advantage. At this time the Middlebury quintet resorted to a slow breaking offense which proved to be very effective. Ashdown added seven points to the Panther total, while MacKenzie garnered one foul shot. Morgan made the only Green and Gold marker on a free throw.

Vermont Starts Spring Training

The Vermont track team was called out today by Coach A. T. Post and the entire baseball squad will be summoned by Coach Larry Gardner tomorrow. This is the initial call for track candidates, but the baseball men have been working out for some time. The varsity basketball season will close tonight for U. V. M. with the post season playoff with Saint Michael's. All the other winter sports teams have already completed their winter's play.

Play by Play Account Shows Middlebury Outclassed Norwich to Tie for State Basketball Championship

The First Half

Middlebury got the tap-off. Ashdown passed to Sweet who tried a long one from the side. The ball rolled off the rim and Norwich took possession. Sipsey sank the sphere on a long try from the side to give the Cadets the first tally. Captain Ashdown failed on a long shot and was called directly afterward for charging. Fanos missed on the free throw and then Ashdown made a long pass down to MacKenzie who dropped in the ball to draw first blood for the Panthers. Sipsey and Fanos tried two long shots but missed. Middlebury got the ball out of bounds and failed to score after five shots for the net. Sweet was fouled by Vietheer and made his last throw good. Corliss missed a step shot and on a second try for a basket was fouled by Fanos. He made both tries good to give the Panthers the lead.

Ashdown and Belfanti missed a couple of shots from the side and Norwich did likewise. Vietheer set the ball in but it rolled around the basket and out. MacKenzie took the sphere, passed it to Belfanti, who looped one over his head for the net but missed. Chalmers went in for Belfanti. Vietheer sank a foul and after each team had made three tries for a basket Vietheer broke loose to sink one from the side to tie the score at five all.

Chalmers fouled Sipsey but the cadet failed to score. On the next play MacKenzie heaved a long one to Chalmers who talleyed to give Middlebury the lead which they kept for the remainder of the contest. MacKenzie was called, Leddy making a point for the Horsemen. Ashdown broke loose on the next play and sank a pretty one over his shoulder. Fanos and Forbes tried several long ones but failed to tally. Middlebury opened up just before the half and Chalmers scored on a follow up to give the Panthers a five point lead at intermission.

Second Half

Middlebury again got the tap-off. Corliss and MacKenzie both missed on long shots. Corliss tried again and missed but Ashdown followed up for a basket. Norwich tried three shots and missed and then opened up a fast passing attack which gave them two baskets in succession to threaten the Panther's lead.

Sweet missed a one-handed shot but Ashdown took the ball from the backboard and tipped it to MacKenzie who sank it to put the score 15-10. Corliss collected a point via the free throw route thus making all his foul shots good up to this time.

Chalmers missed a shot from the side but Corliss sank it from center court directly after. Washburn went in for Sipsey and attempted two long shots but missed each time. Fanos followed up the last try to give the cadets two more points. Ashdown came back, however, and sank a follow-up for another twin counter.

The Middmen tried several long ones and missed, but Corliss broke loose for a step shot to give his team a ten point lead. Vietheer took a pass from Fanos and made another basket on a hook shot. Leddy made another on a free throw and Corliss retaliated to score another twin counter for the Blue.

Coach Hartford, realizing that the game was lost sent in second string players. Middlebury started stalling and before the whistle Olsen went in for Sweet.

DR. PILLSBURY WILL LECTURE ON NATURE

scientific lines. A few of the best of these x-ray views, the only pictures of their kind in existence, will be presented with his lecture in Middlebury.

The result of the work of nearly a lifetime will be shown by Dr. Pillsbury in his illustrated talk. He is an enthusiastic and interesting speaker, and knows his subject thoroughly. "Miracles in Nature" will include plant life, such as flower and seed growth and the process of pollination; protoplasmic activity as the basis of life; the life history of spirogyra; the development of mold on bread; and the part played by the nucleus in organic life.

The educational value of the illustrations used by Dr .Pillsbury is very great, but added to this is an element of beauty which relates them even more closely to the realities of nature, of which they are a reproduction. The care exercised in taking the films and the method of selection has resulted in an exceedingly fine set of pictures. With this in his mind, it is expected that an enthusiastic body of students and townspeople are looking forward to Dr. Pillsbury's lecture.

several violin solos as part of each program. A quartet composed of Thomas Miner '32, James Kerr '34, Harlow Russell '34, and Richard Cushing '35 will also add to the program.

Since the beginning of the year the glee club has been rehearsing under the direction of Alfred Larsen and Miss Prudence Fish. Prof. H. G. Owen, the conductor of the club was on sabbatical leave during the first semester, but has been directing the rehearsals since January. The combined efforts of these people have brought the singing of the club to concert excellence and the musicians are ready for a hard schedule of concerts.

"Give me Lucky Strike every time"

THEY'RE DOTTY ABOUT DOTTY

Dorothy Mackaill's great-great something-or-other was Bobby Burns, the famous Scotch poet, and she's as popular in Hollywood as golf—'nother Scotch import. Her favorite pet is a Brazilian monkey. You see the monk in the new FIRST NATIONAL PICTURE, "SAFE IN HELL." Dorothy has smoked LUCKIES for six years, and not a cent was paid for her statement, so we're making a sweeping bow and saying, "Thanks, Dorothy Mackaill."

"My throat is all important to me. No harsh irritants for yours truly. Give me LUCKY STRIKE every time. And pat yourself on the back for your new Cellophane wrapper with that tab which makes the package so easy to open."

Dorothy Mackaill

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

And Moisture-Proof Cellophane Keeps that "Toasted" Flavor Ever Fresh

TUNE IN ON LUCKY STRIKE—60 modern minutes with the world's finest dance orchestras and Walter Winchell, whose gossip of today becomes the news of tomorrow, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening over N. B. C. networks.
